China Business Law Journal released the list of winners of “2016 China Business Law Awards” in 2017 February issue. GRATA International was recognised for its remarkable performance on projects in 2016 and outstanding results in “Energy&Natural Resources” category. This is a memorable achievement for GRATA International, as the firm wins this award for yet another consecutive year.

The full list of winners can be found on China Business Law Journal web-site.

China Business Law Awards are designed to identify and acknowledge the best Chinese and international law firms in various legal practice areas. The survey conducted by China Business Law Journal included a wide number of legal professionals, corporate executives and law firms from China and overseas were invited to take part. The final list of winners was composed by taking several factors into account, including candidate law firms’ cases, recent highlighted deals and transactions, and other notable accomplishments. All the award winners were chosen as a result of a rigorous selection process, upholding the principle of equity and objectivity, from candidates recommended by clients and other law firms.

China Business Law Journal is an international business law journal for readers interested in Chinese business law as well as Chinese and international economy and trade. The focus of this publication is set on research of developments in legislation and regulations, implementation and practice, identification of best legal strategies and solutions for managing complex business activities, as well as providing international and Chinese lawyers and law firms with in-depth analysis of typical cases.
