GRATA International received China Business Law Awards 2015

GRATA International received China Business Law Awards 2015

China Business Law Journal released winners of “China Business Law Awards 2015” in its second issue for 2016. GRATA International has received recognition for its remarkable performance and outstanding results in the category “Energy, Projects & Infrastructure”. This is an astonishing achievement for GRATA International and especially for Telecommunications and Transport, Construction and Infrastructure (TTCI) department.

China Business Law Awards are designed to identify and acknowledge the best Chinese and international law firms in various legal practice areas. The survey conducted by China Business Law Journal included a wide number of legal professionals, corporate executives and law firms from China and overseas were invited to take part. The final list of winners was composed by taking several factors into account, including candidate law firms’ cases, recent highlighted deals and transactions, and other notable accomplishments. All the award winners were chosen as a result of rigorous selection process, upholding the principle of equity and objectivity, from candidates recommended by clients and other law firms.

China Business Law Journal is an international business law journal for readers interested in Chinese business law as well as Chinese and international economy and trade. The focus of this publication is set on research of developments in legislation and regulations, implementation and practice, identification of best legal strategies and solutions for managing complex business activities, as well as providing international and Chinese lawyers and law firms with in-depth analysis of typical cases.
