Towards a Common Gas Market: The Reform and Integration of the Domestic Natural Gas Markets of the Eurasian Economic Union

Shaimerden Chikanayev has written a paper on the topic of "Towards a Common Gas Market: The Reform and Integration of the Domestic Natural Gas Markets of the Eurasian Economic Union". This paper has been published by Oil, Gas & Energy Law and it is available on ogel.org.

Shaimerden's article explores progress made by the Eurasian Economic Union (EAEU) in designing and implementing its common gas market and examines the different attitudes of Russia and Kazakhstan to the reform of their domestic gas markets, and the effect of such reforms on the energy security and energy transition in this region, especially in the context of the global energy crisis caused by the war in Ukraine.

If you do not happen to have a subscription to OGEL, we'd recommend you consider asking your institution/workplace for one. However you also can find Shaimerden's article freely available here.

Shaimerden Chikanayev currently on a study sabbatical until 2026, not an employee of GRATA International.
