Data Protection & Privacy

Information Technology and Data Protection issues will increasingly affect business and other areas. The continuous development of information technology and the expansion of the business presence of companies throughout the world lead to an increase in the information volume that companies collect, use and process. Data protection and information security have become crucial and complex legal issues for data controllers and processors. There are a lot of issues concerning data protection, including uncertainties in legislation, which is constantly developing together with business processes to match the needs of society.

GRATA International's Data Protection & Privacy lawyers are versed in IT legislation, including business localisation issues, information protection, data export, cloud storage ability, etc.
